THE CONTAGION OF ENTHUSIASM

Bruce Barton said, "Give your son enthusiasm and he will gain the world."

Enthusiasm is a prime element or ingredient in a healthy, working and growing church. When members love their church, are interested in its welfare and witness, and give attention to attendance and support, they may be labeled as enthusiastic workers.

Contagion means communication by contact and transmission from one to another. It's infectious and is likely to spread. It's "catching" and other folks are sure to "get it".

When church members, by their contacts and communications with others, are able to infect them and cause them to "catch" their own spirit of enthusiasm, then the church is being sold.

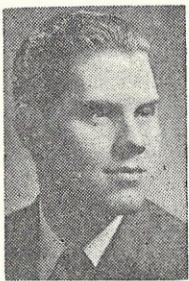

We the members of our church, are selling our church every day only as we bear an enthusiastic testimony. "This is MY church, and I proudly claim membership as I enthusiastically tell other people about Christ and MY church."

PASTOR'S PARAGRAPHS

A Personal Letter . . .

Dear Members:

I feel that a word of explanation is due concerning my absence from the pulpit last Sunday morning. I had not anticipated it causing such an uproar among the members, but I feel that when you hear of the circumstances you'll understand.

I had fully intended to be present as usual, but Saturday afternoon a whole carload of my wife's folks from Arkansas pulled into the driveway. We hadn't seen them in almost a year and since they had their children with them, we packed a hurried picnic supper and headed for the lake. It was after dark when we got back and aside from the fact that I hadn't been able to finish my sermon preparation, my wife's relatives had decided that they would spend the night with us and leave right after lunch Sunday to drive on to the mountains.

I tried to phone the chairman of our deacons, but as most of you know he is out of town a great deal and I was unable to contact him. However, I did leave a message with his wife and she promised to let him know as soon as he got home. Naturally, I felt that this was all that was necessary and that everything would work out fine.

I stayed home Sunday morning visiting with the folks, and it wasn't until Sunday afternoon, when the committee from the deacon's came to visit me, that I found out that you hadn't been able to line up a supply preacher. I had just taken for granted that the chairman's wife would tell her husband when he came in Saturday night and that he would work something out. And besides this, how was I to know that this was the Sunday our organist had planned to be out of town, and that our choir director would be called away to announce a Sunday baseball game.

I regret that you had to dismiss the services. It just never occurred to me that the more than 1,000 people present had come expecting to hear me preach. And, I was deeply sorry to hear from the deacon's committee that there were four people present who had come to make a profession of faith but had to leave disappointed. I'll try not to let this happen again, but I can't promise anything, at least until vacation season is over.

So, as my favorite barber tells me when I get my hair cut, "I'll see you next Sunday, unless company drops in."

Almost sincerely,
Your Pastor

P. S.—Absurd? Unthinkable? Yes, but the same Person who expects the pastor to be present is depending just as much on every Sunday school teacher and officer to be present too—Jesus Christ. He's the one whom we fail.

Library Notes

For further thinking and reading on the subject of the splendid sermon we heard a week ago Sunday ("God's Cure For Despondency"), we would suggest the following library books:

"Prescription For Anxiety" by Weatherhead.

"Live With Your Emotions" by Werner.

"Finding Your Way In Life" by Weston.

"The Conquest of Fear" by King.

"Understanding Fear" by Oversstreet.

"Quiet Talks on Power" by S. D. Jordan.

Our circulation for the two weeks of Vacation Bible School was 1,272, a record high. The reading clubs will continue four more weeks until July 24, so keep on coming and getting more books.
