Brian's Lines

There are people like that you know. I mean people who always look at the bad side of things. Pessimists is what we call them. The world is full of them.

Show the pessimist a man who makes nine out of ten free throws in a basketball game and he will say, "Yes, but he missed one." Show him the growth charts of a successful business and he will say, "Yes, but wait till next year. It will fall apart then." Why, a pessimist will even complain about the noise made when opportunity knocks. There are people like that all around us.

What does pessimism do?

Pessimism cramps our creativity. The problem with pessimism is not that it is not justified. Many times it is. The problem is that it produces lethargy. It keeps us from trying because we are convinced in the beginning that something cannot be done. The things in life that have been accomplished have been done by those too dumb to know that they couldn't be done. While others are standing around saying, "It can't be done," they have already done it.

Pessimism perpetuates our past. A pessimist is one who looks at the past failure of his life and knows that he can expect only more of the same in the future. It imprisons him in a painful past from which he cannot break free. The optimist sees the past, even with its failures, as building blocks for a more important future.

Pessimism frustrates our future. Pessimism casts a dark shadow of impossibility over our future. But think what optimism does. I heard of one ninety-five year old man who bought a suit and got two pairs of pants with it. He got married and bought a house next to an elementary school! There was a man who was making plans for the future.

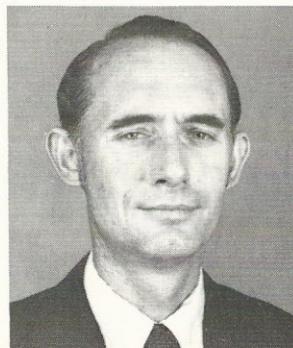

Now I know that there are going to be the pessimists in society. We will always have them. But life is too short to face it with an attitude that cramps our creativity and perpetuates our painful past and frustrates our future. I want to give three cheers for optimism and I'll see you on Sunday at the place where we come to have our hope renewed.

CHURCH-WIDE RECEPTION FOR DR. SIMS

TO THE WMU MEETING

ON AUGUST 14

Dear F.B.C. Members:

The past months have passed very quickly. While in one respect it seems we have hardly met, the truth is that we have developed many lasting relationships.

Our family will miss all of you as we move in a couple of weeks. We ask you to remember us as we have to leave Pensacola and we pledge to prayerfully support the ministries of First Baptist Church.

ED JOHNSON

AUTOGRAPH PARTY

On August 12 at 4:30 P.M. to 6:00 P.M. there will be an Autograph Party for Dr. Harbour. He will be there to sign his new book, "Famous Couples of The Bible". See you on the 12th in the Library.
